Decatur, October 27.

GUITEAU profanely claims to have God on his side. The low, dirty, sacrilegious cur is more likely one of Satan's special details.

A HANGING at Springfield, N. C., on Friday last, afforded a free entertainment for 4,000 people.

The cunning displayed in Guiteau's acting shows that he is far from a fool. He evidently has mind enough to know right from wrong, and that punishment should follow violation of law.

The Boston Herald sarcastically says that it will be a proud moment in the career of Senators Dawes and Hoar if they shall be permitted to conduct Senator elect Riddleberger to the desk of President David Davis to swear.

BILL JONES, charged with the shooting of Guiteau, can hardly be called a "crank." He is a burly, rough fellow who keeps himself well filled with benzine. He glories in what he had done, though when taken to prison he was found to be very drunk.

The hanging of Ed. Maxwell at Durand, Wisconsin, is another evidence that the people are tired of the leniency of courts with criminals. The way to stop the disgraceful scenes of mob law will be to make judicial punishment surely follow crime.

A VERMONT woman killed her child and has been sentenced to be hanged next March. She will have plenty of time for preparation, as the intervening months will bespent in the penitentiary, the last three in solitary confinement. She probably would as soon be hanged right off.

The Jacksonville Journal is evidently ashamed of the fact that Mahone and his republican allies have succeeded in Virginia. It says:

"It has been well said that 'there were three parties in Virginia in the last election, divided from each other on the debt question. These were the democrats, who said the debt should be paid, but wouldn't pay it; and the readjusters, who said they would pay to the best of their ability, and are ready to do it.'"

The Journal certainly knows that its statement about the democracy in the above is untrue. There were only two parties in Virginia: The regular democratic ticket supported by the majority of democrats and many honest republicans, and the mongrel Mahone ticket, supported by the would be repudiators of the public debt. The friends of the latter are aiders and abettors.

A WASHINGTON dispatch says that General Francis A. Walker, submitted a statement to the secretary of the interior on Saturday, containing some interesting facts concerning representation in the next house of representatives. The total population in the states is 47,371,340, with the number of representatives at the present figure, 292, we would give one representative to every 169,080 population. Upon this basis the following changes in representation would ensue in the forty-eighth congress: Arkansas, California, Michigan, Mississippi, South Carolina and West Virginia gain one each; Minnesota and Nebraska gain two each; Alabama, Illinois, Maine, Maryland, New Hampshire, Ohio, Tennessee and Vermont lose one each; Pennsylvania two, and New York three. Other states show no change.

The Chicago Inter-Ocean is evidently willing to make any good sacrifice to retain the organization of its party unbroken. If prohibition will help it, prohibition is the thing; if it will likely take away votes from the party, it will oppose it. It says:

President Chapin, of Bolot College, has written a very sensible and convincing letter in opposition to an independent temperance movement in the politics of Wisconsin. As President Chapin is a temperance advocate of National reputation, and in no sense a politician; his advice should have weight with the good people who may be induced to vote the independent ticket with a hope of encouraging temperance. President Chapin says this independent movement is "fraught only with mischief to the cause of temperance and the political welfare of our commonwealth and our nation. Nearly every vote given to the temperance ticket will be one taken from the republican party, and will contribute, so far, to pass the rule of the state over to the democratic party, which makes the drinking saloons its centers of influence, and which has been, through all its history, the determined opponent of all measures designed to restrict the sale and use of intoxicating liquors—to say nothing of its ruinous policy in other nations."

THE NEWS BY TELEGRAPH.

THE SHOOTING.

The Would-be-Avenger Arrested Proves to be the Wrong Man,

And Guiteau's Assailant Still Breathes Pure Air

Bill Jones the Wrong Man.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—It seems that the man arrested on Saturday, charged with attempting to kill Guiteau, is the wrong man. The police were so certain they had the right man that they took no special pains to identify him. Several of the officers stationed about the court room saw him, and said positively that he was the man, but yesterday afternoon Officer Edelin, who fired upon Guiteau's assailant, came out for the purpose of identifying the prisoner. He looked him all over very carefully, and then he came out and said to Lieut. Johnson: "You have the wrong man." Officer Edelin detailed the difference between Bill Jones and the man who made the assault. The person who came up alongside the policeman was mounted on a powerful sorrel horse with white fore legs. The horse of Mr. Jones had not a white spot upon it. Officer Edelin said the would be homicide was a bold, cool, resolute fellow with a very big, heavy, black mustache. He did not have the appearance of a dissipated man. Officer Edelin related some peculiar features of the affair. He said that he noticed the man following the van all the way down from the court house, and at one time he had a notion to stop and warn the fellow away. Then he thought that the rider was on business, and that his traveling in the same direction was a mere coincidence. As they went up Capitol hill he lost sight of the man, and did not see him again until he fired. After the affair was over, one of the neighbors came up to Edelin and told him that a man ran out from the corner of the street below and handed the rider a revolver before the attack was made. As the man rode away he was also seen by another citizen to throw a revolver to another accomplice, who disappeared in another direction. Here, according to the testimony of competent people, are three different persons engaged in the attempt to take Guiteau's life showing the result of a regular conspiracy to "remove" him.

The "Avenger."

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 21, 81.

Bill Jones is the name by which the would-be assassin is familiarly known in the District of Columbia, where he has been all his life. He is well known in police circles. One of the officers at the station said: "Bill Jones? Why we know him as well as we know where the sun rises." For many years a man named Botts carried on the business of a soap maker. He became well to do, and purchased a farm, which adjoins the Chase-Sprague estate at Edgewood, retired to it and died. Bill Jones, who had married Bates' daughter, inherited the property and has since then lived a happy-go-lucky, reckless, dare-devil life. He had a fine farm and sufficient money for his tastes. He was, the police say, seldom sober. He is fond of his cups and sometimes has had epileptic fits.

The most that they will do with him, said the officer, will be to call him "crank" and give him a term at the asylum. He has not made the police trouble generally, but is known as a man who would have the courage to do anything when in liquor.

A Big Present.

New York, Nov. 21.—The Rev. Dr. Richard Storrs, pastor of the Church of the Pilgrims, in Brooklyn, was presented on Saturday evening with a certified check for $35,000 in honor of the thirty-fifth anniversary of his pastorate. The presentation took place at the residence of J. S. Ward, Mr. S. B. Chittenden making the speech.

Clara Louise Kellogg Will Marry.

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 21.—Miss Kellogg invited her company to dinner yesterday, and under the inspiration of sparkling champagne solemnly announced her engagement to Mr. Whitney, to be ratified by marriage in New York in the latter part of March or early in April. They will then enjoy their love in a cottage by the sea. She frankly admitted the soft impeachment of love at first sight.

St. Louis had 38 murders and 85 suicides during the year ending Nov. 16, and some of the papers of the "future great," are rejoicing that it is no worse. We were under the impression that hemp was raised in considerable quantities in Missouri. Evidently the manufactured article is not much used.

The Mother of Lincoln—Her Home and Grave.

(Rockport (Ind.) Cor. Louisville Commercial.) A walk of a quarter of a mile over an ordinary country foot path brought us to a small, old-fashioned cemetery, situated on a small eminence and covered with an oak grove and an undergrowth of hazel brush. There are a few graves of the humblest kind, whose places are scarcely discoverable.

Until very recently one of the most humble of these graves was that of Mrs. Lincoln, mother of Abraham Lincoln, whose name is revered even among the peasantry of Europe.

Some months ago a paragraph appeared in the South Bend Tribune stating that the grave of Mrs. Lincoln was unmarked in the woods of Spencer county, Indiana. Mr. Studebaker, of the well known wagon firm of South Bend, a generous man and a warm admirer of Mr. Lincoln, determined to mark the grave in some appropriate manner. He proposed to Schuyler Colfax that he would head a subscription with $50 to erect a monument over the grave. Mr. Colfax insisted that $50 would be enough to erect a suitable monument, and suggested to Mr. Studebaker that he send the money to some friend at Rockport who would attend to the matter. Accordingly, the money was sent to Mr. L. S. Gilkey, at Rockport, Ind., who gave his personal supervision to the matter.

A plain white marble slab was purchased and put up at the grave. A party of citizens went out from Rockport and put up the monument. Among the number was Gen. J. C. Veatch, who recognized the need of some protection to the monument, and started a dollar subscription on the train as the party was returning to Rockport. The people took hold of the matter heartily, and the result is a neat, substantial iron fence stands around the monument. The marble slab bears the following inscription:

NANCY HANES LINCOLN,
Mother of Abraham Lincoln,
Died Oct. 6, A. D. 1828, aged 35 years.
Erected by a friend of her martyred son.

Near by the grave of Mrs. Lincoln is the grave of a boy who died while his father was employed in the construction of the railroad. The boy was buried a few feet from Mrs. Lincoln; and when the iron fence was put up a wooden railing that had been over Mrs. Lincoln's grave was put over the stranger lad.

About a quarter of a mile from the little grave yard, in an old orchard on the hill, stands a primitive log cabin, an exact duplicate of the early home of Abraham Lincoln. How much this Nation is indebted to this earnest mother for the influence she exerted over the early life of her son—the martyr to human liberty—the God of nations only knows.

Washington's Last Illness.

The following account of Gen. Washington's illness and death, concerning the manner of which so much has been recently said and written, possesses a peculiar value. It is taken from an old book, "Ewell's Medical Companion," published in 1807, and dedicated by the author, "James Ewell," to "Mr. Jefferson."

On the afternoon of the 13th of December, 1799, riding out to one of his farms, he was caught in a driving rain, which, soon turning into a snow-storm, deposited a considerable quantity of snow betwixt his cravat and neck. Long accustomed to brave the inclemencies of the weather, he paid no regard to this circumstance; but having brushed off the snow on his return, he supped and went to bed as usual. Some time before day, he was awakened with the sore throat and difficult breathing which constitute quinsy. A faithful domestic, who always carried a lancet, was called up and bled him, but without affording any relief.

About daybreak, my near relative and honored preceptor, Dr. James Craik, of Alexandria, the inseparable friend and physician of Washington, was sent for, who reached Mount Vernon about ten o'clock. Alarmed at the General's symptoms, he communicated his fears to Mrs. Washington, who immediately despatched servants for Doctors Dick and Brown. Nothing was omitted that human ingenuity and skill could do for a life so dear, but all in vain. It appeared in the result, as the illustrious sufferer previously declared that his hour was come.

To oblige Mrs. Washington, he continued to take medicines offered him, till the inflammation and swelling obstructed the power of swallowing; when he undressed himself and went to bed, as he said, "to die." About half an hour before he died, he desired his friends to leave him, that he might spend his last moments with God. Thus, after filling up life with glorious toils, he went to rest, "in a good old age laden with riches and honor."

Spurgeon is such a friend of John B. Gough's that he presented him with twenty-four of his best sermons bound in calf. John couldn't reciprocate, because his best lectures have been stolen from this and that one.

A writer in Temple Bar says that "the most unobtrusively well behaved man toward women is, paradox as some may think it, a really well bred American."

Two weeks from yesterday congress meets, when it is expected a dead-lock will begin. Mahone will break it with his readjusting batch.

An exchange says: The St. Paul Globe relates an incident in the recent election in that state that calls for some attention from Col. Bob Ingersoll. I. W. Aretander was a candidate for district attorney on the republican ticket, and in his plea for that ticket before the people he advised republicans to vote it straight through, even though the devil was on it. When the returns for Six-Mile Grove, Swift county, were counted, they stood as follows:

For Dis. Atty.—The Devil, 7

For "—"—I. W. Aretander, 6

The Devil's majority, 1

"This," says the Globe, "is the first instance where the Devil literally carried an election."

The Springfield Journal says that "financial questions have had precious little to do with the late election in Virginia." It evidently did not get the basis for its opinion from the Mahone papers. The Richmond Whig, the leading Mahone organ, lately proclaimed, in capitals and italics, that the Riddleberger measure was a true bill by the endorsement of the people of Virginia, sitting as a grand jury, and that the victory was won on the specific readjustment of the debt formulated on that bill. How do the new formed friends of Mahone in the north like it, any how?

A Washington despatch to the New York Sun says:

The result of the Virginia election has not a little magnified the importance of southern representation in the Cabinet. Mahone is at the extreme front with the Administration, and clothed with an importance he did not have before. While the election was yet pending the question was: Shall Mahone be sustained? Now it is: Shall Mahone be taken into the Cabinet?

It is claimed that Mahone has proved his capacity for leadership. He is regarded as metaphorically rising to the stature of a Cabinet minister. Some republican leaders are now said to favor him for a port-folio—that of Postmaster-General being mentioned. As late as even the recent adjournment of the senate there was a reservation in the minds of conspicuous republicans touching Mahone. This is said to have broken down by the Virginia election, and no one, it is claimed, is so really the coming man as he.

An acceptance of a Cabinet portfolio would involve other questions in Virginia. No vacancy in the senate will be hazardous; therefore there could be no acceptance before Cameron is inaugurated as Governor. If Mahone should step out, things must be so arranged that another, either Lewis or Wise, would step in and play the part out. It is to be noted that democratic leaders are not disposed to misinterpret the signs of the times, among which the Virginia election is so conspicuous. Especially is this the case with northern men now here. Montgomery Blair's letter to The Sun meets with audible responses, but not to readily from southern democrats. Generally, however, southern democrats now here are of the Bourbon sort. It is said though, that visits have been made to the President that would not have been thought of before the Virginia election.

If Arthur has torn up his Cabinet list, as it is said he has, now a startling point that will serve in renewing the work. It is not improbable now that the south may have two Cabinet ministers.

NEWS NOTES.

charges that St. Louis police with being paid by the gamblers for failing to enforce the law against gambling. Several suits for libel have been instituted, and the police officials are likely to be incidentally hauled over the coals. An association of New England hotel and boarding house keepers will endeavor to procure the passage of an act providing that, when a person attempts to fraudulently evade the payment of a board bill, he may be imprisoned at the rate of one month for every $5 of the indebtedness.

At Odessa the mercantile community requested the St. Petersburg government to allow the harbor to be lighted by night. The government having agreed, the work of shipping of wheat goes on by day or night. This is done to counteract what foreign journals style "the obstinate corner" in grain in America.

An orator at Malden, Mass., is reported by the Press as saying that the place is "so charming a village that the very god of light eagerly kisses her hill-tops in the morn and bottles them in regal splendor at the close of the day." It is probable that the word "bottles" should be "bathes," though the orator may have intended a novel figure of speech.

Connecticut is a happy state. There is so little litigation there that, according to the Hartford Courant, the legal fraternity of that city are in a state of chronic discontent, while, according to the Register of New Haven, the Superior Court now in session, "is begging for something to do." A few years ago "an attorney was fortunate to get a case tried in four or five years" in that court.

Mr. and Mrs. (nee Grey) Wilson were thrice married on the same morning—by the civil authority, the Protestant parson, and the Catholic priest.

The Tyne has been greatly deepened of late years, and the effect has been to increase the shipping into Newcastle ranks third among England's ports, 15,717 vessels having entered last year.

"Well, here goes," said Jake Buck-walt, in a Cincinnati saloon; but it was a pistol instead of the glass of beer that he raised to his head and emptied. That was his jocular way of committing suicide.

Wm. Patterson, and aged deacon of Elkhorn, Wis., stepped into the aisle from his pew to make an address, grew faint with emotion, and was killed by striking his head on a sharp corner when he fell.

It will be interesting to see whether the Lord Mayor of Dublin, who, by his casting vote, prevented the freedom of his city being granted to Messrs. Dillon and Parnell, will receive a recognition in due time from the government. The council numbers sixty. Thirteen did not vote.

England's blind postmaster general, who wins golden opinions even from Tories, has scored another success. You can now write a telegram on ordinary note paper, stick on postage stamps sufficient to pay it, and put it in a street post box, and it will be sent as soon as the box is emptied.

Mr. J. H. Miller, who has just returned home from a hunting trip, is sick of typhoid fever.

Arthur Kinney is home from Kansas where he has been attending to his farming and stock interests.

"Uncle Billy" Cantrall was somewhat improved last evening, and hopes of his recovery were renewed.

Mr. A. Smith, representing Louis Snider's Sons, is in the city in the interest of his firm. He was formerly one of the proprietors of the Lincoln Herald.

John Wheeler, of Tuscola, was in the city yesterday visiting the family of Sam'l Ackerman, foreman of the Review office. He returned home last evening.

Hon. E. B. Buck, of Charleston, will probably engage in the newspaper business in Kankakee. He is an experienced journalist, and will make the new enterprise a success.

Mrs. J. E. Sutphin, of Perry, Pike county, in whose family Dr. A. J. Stoner spent a number of his younger years, has been here visiting the latter for the past four weeks. She leaves on one of the early trains this morning en route home.

Mr. Jas. R. Adams, brother to the great clown, Geo. H., and one of the "pantaloon" men belonging to the New Humpty Dumpty, arrived on one of the late trains from St. Louis last night, and cheered the midnight monotony of our sanctum by making us a very pleasant call.

Mr. D. J. Block, proprietor of the Palace Hotel in Litchfield, who has been shaking hands with his old friends here since Sunday morning, expresses himself as well pleased with his business at Litchfield. He is putting his house in good shape and is enjoying a liberal patronage. New furnishings for some of his rooms will follow him on his return home from this city.

Trade at Home.

While in conversation with a gentleman at Springfield a few days ago, he casually remarked that he had seen some Decatur people in that city the day before. There is nothing strange or notable about that. There is scarcely a day, probably, that some of our people may not be found at the capital city. But this gentleman further stated that the people to whom he referred were in Springfield for the purpose of buying goods; they made it a rule to do their "trading" in that city. About this there is something strange. It is not singular that there are good stores and clever, deserving merchants in that city; it is not strange that people should desire to purchase goods, and that they should desire to buy them at just such stores and of just such men. It is singular, however, that we have any citizen in the city of Decatur who desires to buy, and who does buy, his goods elsewhere than at his own home. If Springfield or any other city in the vicinity could offer any claims of superiority over Decatur as a trading point, then there might be an excuse. But it does not. Every branch of merchandise is well maintained here; our merchants are gentlemen; our stocks are extensive and varied; our prices are low; and with all these things equal, we must express our surprise that any one of our people should make a habit of deserting his own enterprising city, and bestowing his patronage upon a neighboring point.

Railroad News.

The Chicago & Alton railroad are peculiarly unfortunate during the past few days. The bridge on the Coal City branch was swept away in the early part of the week, thus throwing the coal traffic of the company on the main rail, which has been badly overcrowded with general business. Friday night last, the bridge on the main line near Carlinville was swept away by the freshet, and Saturday morning the crowning accident of the week occurred by the dumping of an entire freight train, composed of an engine and twenty-five cars, through the Kankakee bridge into the river.

The Little Rock and Fort Smith railway company announces that until Dec. 10, it will carry seed wheat to all stations on its line free of charge. It seems that some corporations have souls.

Fort Wayne wants the shops of the New York, Chicago and St. Louis road, and upon petition the commissioners have ordered an election for Monday to decide the question of giving the road $150,000 in case the shops are located there.

In February, 1871, the buildings of the Chicago and Alton, at Normal, together with a hotel adjoining, which was owned by private parties, were destroyed by fire. The owners of the hotel property entered a suit for damages against the railroad company, charging that their building had been destroyed through the fire alleged to have originated in the railroad buildings. The case was sent from one court to another, and again crops out in the superior court, where it was reversed and remanded.

AMUSEMENTS.

KATHERINE ROGERS LAST NIGHT.

Had Miss Katherine Rogers been greeted by a house proportionate to her merits as an actress, there would have been no vacant chairs in the opera house last night. But she was not, the audience being a rather small one. The play of "Clarice; or All for Love" is a very pretty one, and is happily suited to Miss Rogers' artistic style of acting. She has a clear voice, deeply expressive in tone, which adds no little to her other charms on the stage. Her support is very good.

NEW HUMPTY DUMPTY.

American's generally like fun. Boys and girls do, we know, and grown up children do not form an exception. To gratify this desire the many traveling entertainments are organized. Geo. H. Adams in his Humpty Dumpty makes fun a specialty. Of his appearance at Sandusky, O., the leading paper says: "Biemiller's opera house was well packed from foot lights to sky parlor last night, and when the chairs had all been taken the aisles were filled with chairs. Still the crowd was too great to be seated, and every nook and corner, and entrance was filled with persons standing, eager to see Adams and his Humpty Dumpty troupe. It was not the old and worn Humpty Dumpty that has been played over and over again in every city of the country, but a new, a revised version, with new and original comic sketches and fresh sparkling. Of course Adams, in his imitable character of Humpty Dumpty, the clown, was the center of attraction, and his feats, tricks and hits carried the house by storm. The entertainment throughout was the best of the kind ever given here. It was a medley of fun, music, startling situations, skilled feats of gymnastics and pantomime, and comic tricks, without a stale or any ordinary thing from the opening to the close. The performance of John Winfield's educated dogs was simply a marvel of how the dog can be trained by a skillful master to do. Adams and his Humpty Dumpty can count on a crowded house in Sandusky every time."

Flora Pike, of the Rice Surprise party, was released from the company because she refused to wear tights in "La Mascotte." She thought tights on a pike would not look well.

FAD IN HOME.

(Donahoe's Magazine.)

Do not be afraid of a little fun at home, good people. Do not shut up your house, lest the sun should fade your carpets, and your hearts, lest a laugh should shake down a few of the dusty old cobwebs that are hanging there. If you want to ruin your sons, let them think that all mirth and social enjoyment must be left at the threshold without, when they come home at night.

When once a home is regarded as only a place to eat, drink, and sleep in, the work is begun that ends in gambling houses and reckless degradation. Young people must have fun and relaxation somewhere; if they do not find it at their own hearthstones, they will seek it at other and less profitable places. Therefore, let the fire burn brightly at night in winter, and let the doors and windows be cheerfully thrown open in summer, and make the homestead delighted with all those little arts that parents so well understand. Do not repress the buoyant spirits of your children. Half an hour of merriment within doors, and merriment of a home, blots out the remembrance of many a care and annoyance during the day; and the best safeguard that they can take with them into the world is the unseen influence of a bright little home sanctuary.
